Vice Chancellor's Message for Launch of PWPA's 16 days of activism and one million pledge campaign in University of Veterinary and Animal Sciences

Dear students, Faculty and Staff

Today, University of Veterinary and Animal Sciences, Lahore graciously joins the Punjab Women Protection Authority (PWPA) and the Higher Education Department Punjab in launching the One Million Pledge on our campus as part of the annual 16 Days of Activism Against Gender-Based Violence.

Universities are much more than institutes for learning; they are crucibles for character development and leadership that foster social change. As we envision ourselves in the framework of "From Commitment to Action: A Safe Woman, A Stronger Punjab," we remember that stopping violence and harassment is about more than just agreeing with it; it is about taking responsibility for it daily in our educational setting.

Violence against women, be it in the physical world, at work, at home, or on the quickly growing digital medium, takes away people's dignity and halts the progress that we have made together. By signing the One Million Pledge, we commit ourselves to fight against such violence and harassment.

Prof. Emeritus Dr. Masood Rabbani (Izaz-e-Fazeelat)
Vice Chancellor, University of Veterinary and Animal Sciences, Lahore
